Fostering social innovation and entrepreneurship in intercultural and interreligious contexts

April 01, 2023

Project piloting session and capacity building

The Intrep project, which aims to strengthen entrepreneurial skills by fostering innovation in interreligious contexts, has been working since February 2022 on designing and creating tools for adult community teachers and educators.

The project will begin piloting its results in June, July, and August. The objective is to present the tools developed in the project's first phase to professionals in adult education in discovering new methodologies and digital tools to support innovation and entrepreneurship in their multicultural and interfaith groups.

The project partners will spend a week in Turkey to refine the proposed online tools' teaching method to design the most relevant approach to train other participants. Thus, this piloting phase aims to involve adult trainers of all horizons, working with multiple and diverse audiences to test the online tools and propose alternative methodologies in different topics such as entrepreneurship, multiculturalism, religion, and social innovation.
